Collaborative dialogues

As a significant investor and owner, Handelsbanken Fonder has a responsibility and an opportunity to engage with companies to influence them to act responsibly and conduct their business sustainably. Our responsibility extends even further to the broader asset management sector and its progress on sustainability. We take action in several ways, including through various types of dialogues.

Dialogues with other investors

One of the benefits of collaborative engagement is that several investors together represent a larger ownership share and send clear signals to the companies about investors' expectations in a particular issue. Often, dialogues with other investors are pursued under the leadership of a supplier, revolving either around specific themes, such as human rights or climate impact, or around cases where companies are suspected of violating international norms such as the Global Compact or the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises.

During 2023, 388 companies were addressed through dialogues with other investors. Here, we describe these dialogues, the issues the dialogues have concerned, and the goals of the dialogues.
